

Climate and Health Internship

Are you a student passionate about climate change, health, and making a positive impact? CASCADES is looking for a motivated volunteer Climate & Health Student Intern to support our communications, events, resource management, and day-to-day activities.

You'll have the opportunity to contribute to meaningful work at the intersection of climate and health, while gaining hands-on experience and connecting with a community working toward a healthier, more sustainable future.

Your activities will be tailored to current project needs and to your interests, skills, and availability. Whether you're interested in communications, event coordination, research, knowledge sharing, or project support, there are opportunities to contribute in ways that align with your strengths and goals. CASCADES values in-person collaboration and, where possible, encourages in-person engagement. However, virtual participation may be required depending on your location and the needs of the role.

Interested? Submit an expression of interest telling us a little about yourself, your interests and skills, and how you'd like to contribute to CASCADES.

Apply by email

